

Moose

Alberta, Canada is home to a thriving population of two species of moose. The top six Canadian moose shot in Alberta have all scored over 220 inches, with the largest scoring a whopping 226 $\frac{7}{8}$ " $\frac{7}{8}$ ". Three of those moose are on the Boone & Crockett top 10 Canadian moose of all time. Safari Club International (SCI) classifies the moose found in the southwest corner of Alberta as Shiras moose, with 4 of them having scored in the top 20 all-time. Whether you opt for a fly-in tent camp, a remote river canoe trip, a horseback hunt in the mountains, or a prairie hunt supported by ATVs, your moose hunt in Alberta will be second to none.

With the help of your selected outfitter, you will be able to hunt beyond the regular season dates in any Wildlife Management Unit (WMU) where a moose season exists, pursuing either Canada moose or Shiras. Not only that, but the permit also allows weapon of choice, offering a chance to rifle hunt before other hunters can. There is no better opportunity to find the monarch moose of your dreams.
